

Intern Housing at Fairfield University

MAY 26 - AUGUST 10, 2024

Why Live at Fairfield University?

Fairfield University, a Jesuit institution centrally located on the Connecticut shoreline, is an ideal place for undergraduate and graduate students to live while interning or working during the summer. The campus is within one mile of I-95 and the Fairfield Metro-North station, making it an easy commute to many locations like Norwalk, Stamford, and New Haven. On weekends, students can enjoy Fairfield's beautiful campus, or spend time at the beach, which is only two miles south of the University. Summer residents can also take advantage of being just an hour away from New York City via public transportation or take weekend trips to Boston, Newport, and many other celebrated New England cities and towns.

HOUSING AND AMENITIES

Summer residents at Fairfield University are offered single bedrooms in shared apartments that can accommodate 4-8 students. Some of the many amenities include:

- Air-conditioned, furnished accommodations with kitchens
- Morning and evening shuttle service to the Fairfield Metro-North train station
- 24-hour on-call support and security
- Wireless and wired internet access
- Free parking permit
- Free laundry facilities
- Free access to the state-of-the-art Recreation Complex

All living rooms come furnished with a couch, coffee table, kitchen table, and chairs. Kitchens are equipped with a full-size refrigerator and oven.

ELIGIBILITY

To be eligible for internship housing, students must be either an undergraduate or graduate student at a university with an internship or job for the summer months. Proof of employment and student enrollment is required to confirm summer housing.
