INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS

ABOUT FAIRFIELD UNIVERSITY

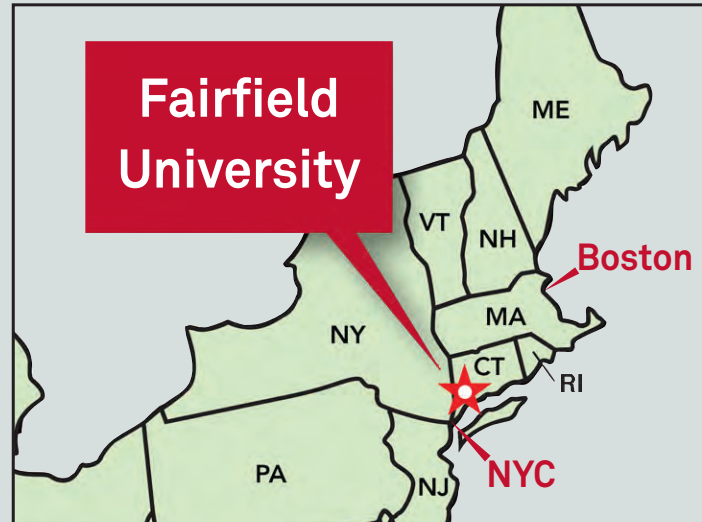

Fairfield University is a nationally-ranked Jesuit institution that prepares students for leadership in a constantly changing world. Approximately 5,000 students from 42 countries are enrolled at the University in our undergraduate and graduate programs. With a foundation in the time-honored values of Jesuit learning and a dynamic blend of theoretical and applied learning, a Fairfield education prepares students for life-long success measured by how deeply they challenge themselves and how they influence the world.

The University was founded in 1942 in the scenic coastal community of Fairfield, Connecticut, just one hour from New York City and three hours from Boston. The area is served by four international airports; The best known is John F. Kennedy International (JFK) which is approximately 90 km or a little over an hour by car.

ACADEMICS

We are well known for our small class sizes and the close relationship students develop with faculty, over 94% of whom hold the highest degree in their field. At Fairfield, we believe in learning through real-world experience – most of our students take part in community service activities or internships, or participate in mission trips. Living and learning aren't two separate activities; they are parts of a whole, and they add up to an education that forms the foundation of an inspired life.

ADMISSION AND APPLICATION

You are encouraged to apply! In addition to the regular application requirements, international students must submit a certified translation of all transcripts, official English-proficiency scores such as TOEFL or IELTS scores, and appropriate financial documentation.

Undergraduate international students should submit their application materials by the following dates:

- Early Application: November 1
- Regular Application: January 15
- Transfer for Spring Semester: November 15
- Transfer for Fall Semester: May 1

Graduate international applicant deadlines vary by program. Most programs offer intakes in September and in January. Materials should be submitted five months prior to the start of the semester if applying from abroad. For more information, see www.fairfield.edu/international

HOUSING

Over 80% of our undergraduate students live on campus; we guarantee housing for all four years. With a large resident population comes a campus that is alive with activities and excitement.

Fairfield and surrounding towns offer graduate students a full menu of housing options, including apartments, home stays and shared accommodations. The Office of International Student and Scholar Services provides resources for off-campus graduate student housing. For more information on facilities and services available for graduate students, visit www.fairfield.edu/welcomegrad
