Diversity and Inclusive Excellence Mission Statement

Members of the Fairfield University community are committed to respecting and valuing one another, finding the common good rooted in us all, and working collaboratively to achieve our potential as a modern Jesuit Catholic institution. We aspire to be an inclusive, welcoming community that is representative of an ever-changing and diverse global populace. The Jesuit tradition of cura personalis—care for the whole person—animates our mission. We educate men and women who serve for and with others within the rich tapestry of cultures that comprise our contemporary world.

By encouraging dialogue, communication, community partnerships, and a culture of understanding, we foster in our students, faculty, and staff the capacity and desire to build a better world through productive citizenship and societal stewardship.

At Fairfield University, we advance this mission through:

- Inclusive Excellence as a critical dimension of our academic mission. We strive to educate through engaging with the broadest possible range of dynamic ideas, perspectives, and identities in an ever-changing world. Embracing the challenges of competing viewpoints is integral to the rigor of our academic enterprise, pushing the horizons of what is known and possible as we pursue our commitment to excellence in teaching and learning.

- A Diverse Community, which is a distinguishing hallmark of Jesuit education. We recognize the inherent value and dignity of each person, guided by our Jesuit heritage as informed by the contemporary context. Fairfield is committed to shaping a community of learners from diverse social, economic, racial, cultural, national, and religious backgrounds.

- Global Engagement as a defining outcome of a modern Fairfield education. We hope to develop men and women to serve as global citizens, at home in the world, able to engage in diverse cultural circumstances with an open mind and the capacity to empathize with the perspectives of others. We actively promote an awareness of and sensitivity toward the full range of differences within and well beyond our community of learners.

- Radical Hospitality as a way of relating with others, shaped by our Jesuit traditions. Fairfield recognizes the importance of learning about, and living in, an increasingly interconnected, intercultural world and reflects this by striving to become a microcosm of the global community, in which the other is unconditionally welcomed, respected, and valued.

Through radical hospitality, we welcome and invite all into our learning community. We are committed to pursuing shared standards of excellence. In these ways, Fairfield University strives for the magis (“the more”) in a way that defines modern Jesuit Catholic education.
GREETINGS FROM THE PRESIDENT

Dear Friends:

It is my pleasure to welcome you to this 31st Fairfield Awards Dinner, an annual celebration, where we renew our dedication as an institution to the Ignatian mission of service through the transformative gift of education.

Fairfield is committed to forming young men and women for and with others who will pursue lives of productive citizenship and societal stewardship. The Fairfield Awards Dinner remains an essential component of our University’s effort to provide access and opportunities for those students who need our financial assistance and institutional support in order to fulfill their potential and realize their vocations.

This dedication we share as a learning community to inclusive excellence and radical hospitality is embodied in our efforts to foster a welcoming community that is representative of our dynamic global populace. This work of inclusion and hospitality is more critical now than it has ever been, as we strive at Fairfield to become ever more global in outlook, and to enhance our standing as a national and international center of modern excellence.

In addition to looking forward, tonight—and at this time every year—we renew our commitment to the foundational vision that illuminates all that we undertake, which is as clear and unwavering now as it was to Ignatius himself, when he founded the first school in Messina, Sicily in 1547. Ignatius embraced a mission in education because he understood that developing young persons of promise through education is the most advantageous way to transform our world for the better. As we adapt to meet the demands of our particular age, we do so in the spirit of Ignatius: as a work of service to all of humanity, continually broadening our offerings and deepening our engagement with the needs of the greater community; all for the Greater Glory of God.

Thank you for joining us this evening for this celebration as we honor tonight’s award recipients, all of whom are exemplary members of our community. Thank you for all of your commitment to our common purpose.

Warmest regards,

Mark R. Nemec, PhD
President
Alumni Multicultural Scholarship Fund

The Alumni Multicultural Scholarship Fund at Fairfield University was established in 1988 and is primarily funded through donations to the annual Fairfield Awards Dinner. This event honors accomplished alumni, faculty, staff and parents for their professional achievements and volunteer service, while raising funds to help deserving students realize their full potential through a Fairfield education. The Fund provides an important source of support for students from diverse backgrounds. The event has raised more than $18 million dollars for student scholarships since the dinner’s inception.
MAUREEN ERRITY BUJNO ’90
Managing Director, Deloitte LLP

Maureen has over 28 years of business experience with Deloitte including work with the Mergers and Acquisitions Services group and the Audit practice. She is currently a managing director in the Center for Board Effectiveness for Deloitte LLP. In 2018, 2017, and in 2016, Maureen was recognized by NACD Directorship magazine as one of the top 100 influential professionals in corporate governance and in the boardroom. She is a CPA in New York and a member of the AICPA. Maureen is a former member of the board of directors of the YMCA, West Side, New York City, and also former President and ex-officio member of the Fairfield University Alumni Association and board of directors. She earned her BS in accounting from Fairfield.

PATRICIA E. GLASSFORD ’85
Vice President and Project Leader, General Electric

Patti is a member of the University’s Board of Trustees. She has worked with GE for over 32 years and was previously vice president and chief financial officer at GE Energy Connections. She held a number of leadership roles throughout her career across the Industrial, Capital and Media businesses, including VP Cash Initiatives, CFO Treasury, CFO Restructuring Operations, CFO Industrial Solutions, EVP and CFO NBC Universal Film and Parks, SVP and CFO NBC TV Stations and NBC West Coast, manager, Finance GE Plastics Commercial and Manufacturing, and executive audit manager. Patti graduated from Fairfield University with a BS in finance in 1985 and GE’s Financial Management Program in 1988. Patti was the 2015 recipient of the Alumni Professional Achievement Award. She and her husband, John ’85, live in Boston, Mass.
Last summer, Kristin took the helm of the Fairfield University Alumni Association and is focused on continuing alumni engagement as President. She graduated from Fairfield in 1987 with a BS in mathematics. Through her math studies, Kristin honed logic and analytical thinking skills that were invaluable as she pursued a law degree at Boston University, and that she continues to draw upon today, as head of North American Specialty Claims for Liberty Mutual Insurance Company. Her legal career spans 28 years in the insurance industry, including 18 years at law firms in New York City and Chicago. Perhaps no one can better speak to Fairfield’s “story” than Kristin herself, through her unique perspective as an alumna, married to fellow alumnus, Rob McMahon ’87, and as a parent of two daughters who currently attend Fairfield, Elisabeth McMahon ’20 and Emma McMahon ’21. Both Kristin and her husband Rob were the first in their families to attend Fairfield. They paved the way for a steady stream of siblings, nieces, nephews, and now their daughters, who are the 12th and 13th members of the Dodge and McMahon families to become Stags.

“Alumni participation is one of the criteria that’s used when Fairfield is rated against its peer group. So, what is it about Fairfield that stands out from other Jesuit institutions? I think the alumni voice is important in telling that story.”

A senior nursing major with a minor in Spanish at Fairfield, Zaid also volunteers at the Greater Bridgeport Hope Dispensary, a non-profit organization dedicated to providing free pharmaceuticals to patients that have inadequate health insurance or no insurance, as a patient interpreter where he helps to educate patients on their prescribed medications. He has also served as a patient navigator and translator for the St. Vincent Annual Medical Mission, which is dedicated to providing health services to the greater Bridgeport community. After graduation, Zaid hopes to dedicate his nursing career to veterans and plans to obtain an advanced degree in geriatrics.

“My gratitude for your helping hand and making my journey here at Fairfield University beyond what I could have imagined. I cannot thank you enough, but I know one way I can show my appreciation is by following in your footsteps and helping others.”
HEMANT MAHESHWARI ’21
Major: Computer Science
Minor: Mathematics
Hometown: Indore, India

I would like to thank you for giving me this scholarship. It really means a lot to me. I would not be able to study here at Fairfield University without having this scholarship. It is said that there is always someone behind one’s success, for me it is you, who gave me an opportunity to live my dream to pursue a bachelor’s degree in computer science.

ARMANDO MUJICA ’21
Major: Finance & Accounting
Minor: Economics
Hometown: San Juan, PR

One of my greatest experiences at Fairfield University was when I was working for the relief of Puerto Rico. Throughout this period, people were very sympathetic and tried to help in all possible ways. Through this experience, I saw how the University community was one that cares for others. I appreciate the Fairfield University community and I was glad to have the opportunity to become part of this great family.

ANITA SEBABI ’21
Major: Communication and International Studies
Hometown: Bridgeport, Conn.

With a heart of gratitude, I would like to thank my scholarship donors for giving me the chance to continue to obtain the quality education offered here at Fairfield. It encourages me to continue to prosper academically and in every other way.
Comedian JOE DEVITO ’90

Following this year’s Fairfield Awards Dinner ceremony, alumnus comedian Joe DeVito ’90 of NBC’s Last Comic Standing fame will bring his talents to the Alumni Association-sponsored after-party.

“A big part of comedy is shared experiences, so it’ll be fun to talk about memories from our Fairfield days. I may name names,” Joe said about what guests can expect from his stand-up routine.

Whether taking on relationships, his Italian-American family, or current events, Joe’s dead-on timing, unexpected twists, and sheer flights of lunacy make him a favorite at clubs and colleges across the USA, and at the top venues in New York City.

An English major while at Fairfield, Joe served as editor-in-chief of the student newspaper The Mirror, which was the beginning of his interest in comedy writing. These days, in addition to a full slate of stand-up performances in the U.S. and Canada, Joe’s full-time comedy career is jam-packed with podcasts, panel appearances, teaching comedy workshops, and one-on-one coaching. Learn more about Joe DeVito at joedevito.com.
“I’m really happy to work at a Jesuit, Catholic institution that promotes building men and women for others — across the board.”
Dr. Harding joined the psychology faculty of Fairfield University in 2003, and is currently an associate professor with teaching and research interests in behavioral neuroscience and neuroendocrinology.

“I’m really happy to work at a Jesuit, Catholic institution that promotes building men and women for others—across the board,” Dr. Harding said. “Fairfield University is a supportive environment that consistently promotes growth and community engagement.”

In 2010, Dr. Harding was recognized as the College of Arts and Sciences Distinguished Teacher of the Year, in part for her service learning course that includes a community partnership with a school in Bridgeport. She also served for 8 years as a co-director and faculty mentor for BASE camp, a research and mentoring focused summer science camp serving underrepresented high school girls. Dr. Harding has conducted research on a variety of issues, including the effects of microgravity on the development of vestibular reflexes as part of a collaborative project with NASA.

Currently, she has an active research laboratory investigating the role of hormones in autism spectrum disorder. Dr. Harding has trained more than 70 undergraduate students in behavioral neuroscience techniques, and many of these students have gone on to earn advanced degrees in the field. Recently, Dr. Harding has shown leadership in curricular revision, serving on the Core Curriculum Task Force as part of the Fairfield University 2020 Strategic Plan, and as the director of the Core since 2017. She has been particularly instrumental in the approval and implementation of the new Magis Core Curriculum.

“From the beginning, the revision of the core curriculum was a collective process that involved faculty, administrators, alumni, and students. The tireless efforts of these key people resulted in a program which has a strong foundation in Jesuit traditions,” Dr. Harding continued. “I’m optimistic and excited to see how the changes to the core impact the incoming class of students, especially as our faculty develops new courses to meet the goals of the new core.”

Dr. Harding earned a BA in psychology from the College of the Holy Cross, an MS in physiology and neurobiology from the University of Connecticut, and a PhD in biomedical sciences (neuroscience) from Mount Sinai School of Medicine at New York University.
“There is something extremely compelling and almost magical about Fairfield University; the school not only educates, but transforms young adults into wonderful human beings.”
Anne Harris, P’18

Originally from Wilton, Conn., Anne Harris has spent her career focused on the field of higher education. After she spent a number of years working for a variety of corporations such as Citigroup, Monsanto, and Dun and Bradstreet, Anne developed an expertise in identifying and sourcing high potential talent from top colleges and universities here and abroad. From this experience, she became interested and passionate about connecting the needs of employers with the needs of colleges and universities.

As a corporate university relations leader, Anne worked closely with alumni, university development and corporate relations teams to find common ground and deepen the corporate-university relationship through research dollars, scholarships, and grants.

Anne has also had the opportunity to move to the other side of the desk and joined the team at the Darden Graduate School of Business at the University of Virginia. As the assistant dean of career development, she was able to leverage her corporate knowledge and relationships to establish a world class career development department leading the school to #2 in the nation.

Anne’s passion for Fairfield University grew as she watched her daughter, Elizabeth Harris-Jones ’18, flourish at the Marion Peckham Egan School of Nursing and Health Studies.

“Since I met Anne Harris five years ago, she has been a tremendous asset to the Egan School,” said Meredith Wallace Kazer PhD, APRN, FAAN, dean and professor of the Egan School. “Her enthusiasm and support for nursing and the impact we have on healthcare has launched us in new, cutting-edge directions. We are most grateful to have her on our Egan School advisory board and as a resource to further the work of our faculty and students.”

Anne has directed a leadership gift to the Egan School because of her strong belief in its mission, its commitment to hire and support the best faculty, and the school’s leading-edge technology and progressive programs.

“The Egan School’s faculty and the University development staff have been of tremendous support to me during a challenging year of elder care,” Harris said. “There is something extremely compelling and almost magical about Fairfield University; the school not only educates, but transforms young adults into wonderful human beings. Perhaps it is the attitude of gratitude that makes all the difference.”

Harris received her bachelor’s of science degree in education at the University of Vermont and her master’s of science degree in higher education at Cornell University. She currently resides in Waynesboro, Va. and serves on several boards including the Egan School of Nursing and Health Studies Advisory Board, the Kiwanis Club of Waynesboro, Va., and the First Presbyterian Church.
“Fairfield was tremendous in helping me think circularly instead of focusing on a direct question. Often times, answering a question requires taking the time to think about additional consequences and later circumstances. It has led me to really think in a holistic way.”
President and CEO of Collette, Dan Sullivan has over 45 years in the travel industry. He was a driving force in taking Collette from a regional tour operator to a global company and an industry leader. In addition to being a highly successful businessman, Sullivan has dedicated much of his life to philanthropy. In 2007, he founded the nonprofit, The Collette Foundation, to support communities and especially children through hunger and education initiatives all over the world. A member of the Center for Faith and Public Life (CFPL) Advisory Board for nearly 10 years, Sullivan has been a supportive and enthusiastic advocate for their work.

“What animates him most is the mission to create global service-learning experiences that immerse students in cultures and contexts quite different from their own,” said Melissa Quan, director of the CFPL. “Dan has helped the CFPL to establish an endowment that generates scholarship funds to make these global experiences available to all students. He’s a great example of how to bring the Jesuit values into one’s vocation. I am thrilled to see him receive this award.”

As CEO, Sullivan has brought Collette from a smaller domestic entity to a midsize global enterprise. Sullivan has also been responsible for such innovative first-to-market initiatives as launching a worldwide sales team and driving new product development to non-traditional destinations.

In addition to his service to Fairfield and the CFPL Advisory Board, Sullivan is on the Committee Encouraging Corporate Philanthropy. He chairs the Collette Foundation board. He sits on the Charitable Foundation board for Bristol County Savings Bank; is the former Chairman for Tourism Cares; serves as Co-Chairman of the Pawtucket Foundation, an organization committed to the continued economic development of Pawtucket, Rhode Island, Collette’s home city. He is also an engaged supporter of non-profit causes including the St. Jude Children’s Research Hospital, Hospice, Hasbro Children’s Hospital, and Amos House.

Sullivan graduated from Fairfield with a degree in marketing and holds a degree from Harvard Business School’s Executive Owner/President Management program.

When asked about his favorite memories of attending Fairfield University, Sullivan was quick to say “playing baseball (all four years, he was a first baseman and outfielder) and grilling burgers at my house on the beach during senior year. I made so many great friends during my time there that are some of my closest friends to this day.”

He talked about how the University prepared him for his career and for life in general. “Fairfield was tremendous in helping me think circularly instead of focusing on a direct question. Often times, answering a question requires taking the time to think about additional consequences and later circumstances. It has led me to really think in a holistic way.”

Dan loves Springsteen, traveling the world and relaxing at home with family, including his 8 grandchildren.
“My Jesuit education was transformational. The core curriculum taught me how to think deeply and critically—to discern, in the words of St. Ignatius.”
A cum laude graduate of Fairfield with a BA in political science, Sheila is executive vice president, chief legal officer and general counsel at New York Life.

“In my junior year, I spent a semester in Washington interning in the Senate,” Sheila said. “That experience broadened my horizons, sparking an interest in public policy and fiscal affairs. I made my career at the intersection of those two interests.”

Davidson leads New York Life’s legal operations and oversees its board governance, compliance, governmental affairs and operational risk functions.

Davidson joined New York Life in 1991 and has served in many leadership positions in legal, compliance, and administrative areas. She was appointed to New York Life’s Executive Management Committee in January 2001.

“My Jesuit education was transformational. The core curriculum taught me how to think deeply and critically—to discern, in the words of St. Ignatius,” Sheila said. “I think, though, that I am most proud that I learned the rewards of giving back—of being in service to others. I may not always live up to that, but it is my North star.”

Sheila is a member of the New York State Bar. She serves on the boards of Fairfield University, Madison Square Park Conservancy, the Citizens Budget Commission and the Life Insurance Council of New York. She is a frequent speaker on topics such as legal and compliance best practices and diversity.

“Sheila has made Fairfield very proud,” said Vice President for Advancement Wally Halas. “Not only by making a significant impact in her field and by achieving excellence in her professional endeavors, but also by leading through example. Fairfield’s Jesuit mission lives on every day in a great alumna like Sheila through her ability to lead with a higher purpose and her service to empower others. We are thrilled to honor her with this recognition of highest achievement.”

In 2018, the New York City Bar Association honored Sheila with their Diversity and Inclusion Champion Award. In 2016, the National Law Journal named Sheila one of America’s 50 Outstanding General Counsel citing her commitment to diversity. She is the founding executive sponsor of The Women’s Initiative, New York Life’s Employee Resource Group that connects and empowers women across the company.

Sheila also holds a JD from George Washington University. Her advice to this year’s graduating class: “Work hard. Be kind. Take risks. Once a Stag, always a Stag.”
