Internships for Academic Credit
Qualifications, Requirements, and How to Apply

Getting Academic Credit for your Internship

Students who meet the qualifications below may opt to have their acquired internship count for academic credit. Both paid and unpaid internships can be done for credit. There are several reasons why you might consider applying for academic credit:

- Many unpaid internships will require you to receive credit for the internship
- Replacing a traditional elective class with an internship course will give you a more flexible schedule for completing internship hours
- The Director of Internships & Professional Development and the Faculty Chair of your internship subject area will serve as resources to you during the semester to assist with any questions and offer advice

DSB students can do a maximum of two 3-credit internships and two 1-credit internships in the fall, spring, or summer semesters.
